WHEN THE WAS CLOSED—LIMITATION OF THE ACT OF MARCH 12, 1863.—In the case of the United States against Anderson, the United States Suprems Court yesterday de-cided that the limitation in the captured and abandoned property act, requiring all suits to recover the proceeds of property suits to recover the process of property select and sold belonging to loyal persons to be commenced within two years from the close of the sebellion, ild not refer to the suppression of the rebellion in any particu-lar locality where loyal claimants might re-side, but applied to the entire suppression of the rebellion throughout the country. It is thought to be impossible that the intention ess was that any claimant living in of Congress was that any claimans living in a district where the robellion had been sup-pressed must sue within two years from the dats thereof, but that it was the final termidata thereof, but that it was the final terminalise of the war that was meant. On that question the Gourt say, it is from thistit was contemplated by Congress that some official declaration of the fact should be made; and that it was not intended that the people should be left to determine the date for themselves, and to proceed with their claims accordingly. The act of March 2, 1867, recognizing the close of the war to be the date of the President's proclamation to that end of the President's proclamation to that end (August 20, 1862, is accepted as conclusive on this point, and that date is held to be the date when the rebellion was repressed for all public and private purposes. THE IMPERIAL OFFICEAR ORDER OF MEDsince.—His Imperiat Majosty, the Saltan, has transmitted to Dr. William A. Brown, shrough His Excellency Blacque Bay, the minister at Washington, the decoration of the Imperial Oitoman Order of Medibile. The Medidir is one of the hand-Modjisite. The Antitute is one of the hand-somest and most highly prised of the deco-rations of Europe, and has always been given out with great jealousy and caution in order that the great honer of its bestowal might not be lessoned or impaired. Next to the Ozmaniic it is the highest honor within the gift of the Sultan. Blacque Bey, a gen-tieman of great influence and distinction in tieman of great inneces and instruction in Tarker, received the decoration only after twenty-five years of diplomatic service. The placeuse is worn by most of the sovereigns of Europe, by diplomate, second, and officers of nonephotions express and mosts. The form on of the decoration is similar to that of the Cross of the Legion of Ronor, in France, and is given both to military men and civiland is given both to military men and civil-ians. The jewel of the Medildle is in silver, in the form of a star of seven poins, the rays radiating from a cantral device in gold and red enamel, which encloses a disk of silver bearing the Dismillat or Imperial signet. The star is suspended by a crescent in red enamed, and hangs from the ribbon of the decoration, which is red, with a narrow green border. Sometimes, in very extraordecoration, which is rep, with a narrow green, border. Sometimes, in very extraor-dinary cases, it is given set in diamonds of many thousand dollars in value, as in the recent instance of the Prince of Wales, who was invested with the Order of Medjidic on

Briarse and Muscle.—W. B. Clark, esq., preaident of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, in his recent report offers the following senable remarks: "Some persons appear to look upon the contented performance of coarse and difficult manual labor with a sort of respect, and to regard with suspicion any attempt to avoid or relieve it as indicative of lashuess. But a dealer for improvement lies at the foundation of all progress in the arts, and by the intelligent efforts of men dissatisfied with the methods of the past, agriculture is rapidly rising toward the dignity and physical comfort of a learned profession. How much more mind, and how much less muscle is now called into requisition in the various operations of husbandry than twenty-five years age. In preparing the soil, in plauting, in cultivating, in haying, in harvesting, in threshing, in the maragement of the dairy in fact, almost everywhere histoligence is the principal thing, and more brute force comparatively worthless. The old prejudice against shook farmers and fancy farmers, has at length been overcome by the mass of printed matter which pours is light into everyments and sentential to be a very mere there with pours in light of the soil."
